

GENERAL AVIATION GROUP CONFERENCE: Designing Light Aircraft – More Methods and Tools

Tuesday 23 November 2010
No. 4 Hamilton Place, London W1J 7BQ, UK

Sponsorship & Exhibition Packages

CONFERENCE SYNOPSIS

The Conference aims to develop the theme successfully launched at the 2009 General Aviation Group Conference and to address topics highlighted in the 2009 post-Conference reviews. It will build on the broad overview with further insight into the utility of specific computer tools, and specific aerodynamic, structural and manufacturing issues. Again we are finding speakers who are active in their fields so that presentations are pertinent to the design challenges of today.

Specific software design packages will be described and demonstrated. This will include a conceptual design package based on parametric data from the literature and more specific analytical tools for development of the design detail.

The Group believes the Conference will be of interest to amateur and professional aircraft designers, University students and lecturers, as well as those with an interest in the technical development of light aircraft.
